BY virtue of a writ issued out of the court of chancery for this province of New-York, dated the 15th day of June instant, and to me directed, commanding me to make sale of all that certain messuage or dwelling house, and lot of ground thereunto belonging, situate, lying and being in the city of Albany, on the south side of the street commonly called and known by the name of Jonker's street, bounded on the west by the house and lot formerly of Peter Van Brough, deceased, then belonging to James Stevenson; on the south, by the Lutheran burying ground; on the east, by the passage or lane between the said house and ground, and the house and ground late of Colonel John Schuyler, containing in breadth in front and rear 28 feet and 7 inches, and in length on the east side 92 feet 4 inches, and in length on the west side 203 feet and a half, all wood measure. Which said messuage, or dwelling house, and lot of ground, has by the said court been decreed to be sold at public vendue, on a bill of complaint, exhibited in the said court by Levinus Clarkson, complainant, against Robert Rogers, defendant, for fore-closing the equity of redemption of the said premises, and to return the monies arising by such sale, into the said court, on the 30th day of January next. This is therefore to give notice, that I shall, in obedience to the said writ, expose to sale the said messuage, or dwelling-house, and lot of ground, so decreed to be sold, at public vendue at the City-Hall of the city of Albany, on the 9th day of January next, at eleven of the clock in the forenoon of the same day. STOCKHOLM, August 25.

On the 22d instant all the Senators received their dismissal, by a note which the King sent to each of them, as follows: "Gustavus, by the Grace of God, King of Sweden, &c. to our beloved and faithful N. N. sends greeting: As by the form of Government now accepted by the Dyet, and confirmed by us, the dignity of Senator, which had been conferred on you, now ends as to your Person; it is our will to grant you a dismissal from it by this present; testifying to you our satisfaction and content with your conduct, during the time which you administered in it. We recommend you particularly to the Grace of God."

From the Castle of Stockholm, August 22, 1772. GUSTAVUS.

John de Heband.

After these letters had been dispatched, the King conferred the dignity of Councillors and Senators of the Kingdom, on fifteen Noblemen.

His Majesty declared, at the same time, that he would reserve two Senators in petto, who when they shall be declared, will have rank in the nomination of that day.

The Letters of vocation for these dignities were couched, as in the time of Gustavus Adolphus, in these words:

"Gustavus, by the Grace of God, King of Sweden, sends greeting: We let you know, by these presents, that in consequence of your fidelity, and the diligent Services which you have in every respect rendered to us, and the confidence which we have always placed in your probity and good will, we have elected you our Councillor and Senator of the Kingdom; and as we have granted you this honour on account of your fidelity, we doubt not that you will accept it with gratitude, and acquit yourself as it becomes a true Swede, a man of honour, and a faithful and brave counsellor and servant, as we expect of you. We grant you the appointments and rank belonging to this dignity, as it now is or shall be distinguished in the State. So God assist you."

From the Castle of Stockholm, August 22, 1772. GUSTAVUS.

John de Heband.

The King hath caused to be distributed to the poor 10,000 measures of meal, of 20lb. each.

August 26. The great change in the government of this kingdom hath been proclaimed (the same day it was here) at Gothenbourg, Carlscroon, and many other places; which proves that the whole nation unanimously wished for it. Prince Charles has received the homage of the subjects in Scania and Gothia, in the same manner the King has done here; and General Sprengporten is sent into Finland, to receive the oath of fidelity from that province, which is as ready to give it as the others.

Copenhagen, August 25. The preparations of war continue to be made here with the utmost vigour. Two more ships of 60 guns are equipping, besides those mentioned before.

Paris, Sept. 4. The last letters from Aleppo, by way of Marseilles, confirm the victory of Ali-Bey over the Kinja of the new Caimacan of Egypt, and the taking of Beroot with 13 Russian vessels; adding that the Cheik-Daer had taken Damascus, and that Ali-Bey was preparing to reap the fruits of his victory by marching into Egypt.

Altena, Sept. 4. The last letters from Stralsund advise, that the Queen Dowager of Sweden still remained there, and that the King of Sweden had nominated her Gouvernante of Swedish Pomerania.

Those from Stockholm also informs us, that his Swedish Majesty hath disposed of the Government of the provinces of Scania, Halland, Bleckingia, Bahus-Lehn and Smaland, as well as the command of the troops which are quartered in those provinces, in favour of his Royal Highness Prince Charles; and that Prince Frederick had been at the same time appointed Governor of Finland.

Capt. Hellichins hath obtained his pardon of the King, after having assured him of his submission. The garrison of Christianstad hath participated of the same favour.

EDINBURGH, Sept. 9. Saturday se'night the wife of a farmer who lives a little beyond the bridge of Der, was delivered; and on the Tuesday following of a boy and a girl; but all three died a few days after.—The woman at the time of her marriage, which was last year, was upwards of forty years of age.

Extract of a letter from Inverness, Sep. 12.

"On Monday last we had the most dreadful rain and flood ever known in the memory of man, by which large trees were tore up that had stood one hundred years, and numbers of bridges swept away; the military roads were rendered intirely impassable for any carriage, by the amazing torrents tumbling from the mountains, which nothing could withstand. Luckily a repairing party of soldiers were in the neighbourhood, who are now busy in opening a communication to the Tarbet, and securing the bridges that remain. The great bridge upon the military road over the water of Aray, and three smaller ones it Glenaray, are intirely carried away; and both the great bridges at the head of Lochline are greatly damaged. In short it is impossible to represent the devastation hereabout, occasioned by that terrible flood; In the Duke of Argyle's policy, all his Grace's cascades, bridges, and bulwarks, are intirely destroyed."

WARSAW, Aug. 14. We are told here that General Haddick is going to publish an Universalia, the tenor of which is such, that we can scarce give credit to it. Among many articles which it is said to contain, one is as follows, viz. that those who shall presume to speak of the affairs of Poland, so far as they relate to the Court of Vienna, and particularly such as shall dare to say that the latter Court has any design of taking possession of certain districts which do not belong to them, shall be condemned to pay a fine of three hundred florins.

From the LONDON GAZETTE of Sept. 15.

Stockholm, Aug. 28. Last Wednesday all the four orders assembled in Pleno at the usual places, for the first time since the revolution. The Marthal of the Diet opened the Plenum of the Nobility with a long panegyric upon the King, and congratulated the House of Nobles on tranquillity's being restored. After which the new form of government was read there as well as in all other the orders.

The propositions which his Majesty made to the States yesterday, in the hall of the States were also read, and are as follow:

"Whereas the affairs of the government are by Divine Providence brought into such a situation, as to admit of the speedy conclusion of the Diet; but, nevertheless, as the States neither will nor can separate before they have given the assistance to the King and kingdom which the Government requires in every branch of it, his Majesty has found it necessary to lay the following points before the States for their deliberations:

"1st, That the usual contributions may be agreed to and resolved by the States.

"2d, That, according to the ancient custom and the laws of the kingdom, an extraordinary supply may be furnished for the expences of the late King's funeral, and for the coronation.

"3d, As his Majesty cannot know how far these two articles above mentioned, together with the ordinary revenues of the State, will be sufficient to answer the necessities of the kingdom in these times, his Majesty graciously invites the States, according to the 47th section of the form of government, to choose certain persons of the three Orders who direct the affairs of the Bank, with

"with whom his Majesty may deliberate upon the means to be used, in certain cases, and in which some secrecy is necessary."

"4thly, That the States, by the measures they take with regard to the Bank, put it in a condition, the sooner the better, to assist in restoring money affairs to some order, in a manner consistent with the laws."

"The States will agree with his Majesty, that the situation of the kingdom requires, and that the wishes of the whole country are, that this Diet, which has now lasted fourteen months, to the great expence of the kingdom, may speedily come to an end: and as the King is highly desirous, in these difficult times, to ease his faithful subjects at least in this respect, it is his Majesty's pleasure, That the States take these points into consideration immediately, in order that he may receive their report upon them within fourteen days, within which time they will also find opportunities to draw up the final resolution of the Diet."

In consequence of these his Majesty's propositions, the four Orders resolved, that the Deputation of revenues and expences, and that of the Bank, shall immediately make the project of the contributions mentioned in the first and second points, and give their report about the third and fourth.

It was also proposed in the House of Nobles, and agreed to by the other Orders, that all the four Orders should wait on his Majesty with a deputation of one hundred and twenty persons, to return thanks for his Majesty's paternal care, by which the nation has been restored to its true liberty; and to desire that a medal may be struck in commemoration of the happy event.

The King having appointed Count Horn to be one of the new Senators, he took his place in the Senate yesterday.

SEPT. 6. By letters from Amsterdam, which arrived within these two days, we are informed, that a Dutch East Indiaman has brought some very disagreeable accounts of the state of our affairs in Bengal. The substance of the intelligence is, that above 480 Europeans have been killed in a late engagement with the Marattoes; and that a great number of English Officers, finding their oppressions daily increased by those who had the management of the Company's affairs, determined to quit the service, and had accordingly thrown up their commissions.

Letters from Mequinez, dated July 2, bring advice, that Mehemet Ben Adoubia, nephew to the Emperor of Morocco, is marched from thence with a body of Moorish horse, in order to form a camp within a few miles of the Spanish territories, where they are to be joined by some more which are forming and exercising.

SEPT. 7. Commissions were on Saturday last issued from the Admiralty Office, for buying up seven hundred barrels of salt beef, and five hundred of pork, in Ireland, for the use of the navy.

SEPT. 8. Orders are given from the Board of Works for repairing Charlton House, for the winter residence of the Prince of Wales and his household.

A Correspondent says that it may be depended on, that Admiral Knowles has imparted some discoveries, which he has lately made, that will be highly advantageous to the English merchants trading to the Prussian Empire.

There is to be a superb ball at the castle of Zell on the anniversary of his Majesty's coronation; her Majesty the Queen of Denmark has sent for an elegant suit of cloths of British manufacture on the occasion.

A difference has lately arisen between the Protestant and Catholic subdelegates at the Imperial chamber of visitation, which seems to threaten the tranquillity of Germany. Mr. Folke subdelegate for Bremen, had carried himself so haughtily as to give offence to the catholic subdelegates his colleagues; and complaint having been made to the Emperor, his imperial Majesty caused a memorial to be drawn up and formally presented to the King of Great Britain as elector of Hanover, demanding his recall; to which an answer was returned by the Hanoverian minister so little to the satisfaction of the complainants, that they adjourned to Wetzlar, and without giving the least notice to the Protestant subdelegates, separated themselves, and broke up the assembly. How this affair will terminate must be left to time.

Extract of a Letter from Paris, August 28, 1772.

"France having secured, by the last treaty of peace, the liberty of fishing for cod on the great bank of Newfoundland, it was in consequence agreed to grant her an establishment in the little Island of Miquelon, near Newfoundland, that the French fishermen might go thither to dry their cod. Some Englishmen undoubtedly jealous that the said fishery might prosper more than their own, came in a forcible manner, and destroyed the establishment formed at Miquelon. The King of England being informed of this violence, immediately dispatched a courier, not only to disavow it, but also to declare that the enterprise being made without any order on his part, or that of the Parliament, every thing should be repaired, and that France should have entire satisfaction."

September 19. On Saturday at twelve o'clock Mr. Fordyce the banker surrendered himself to his commission of bankruptcy at Guildhall, when he appeared quite calm, composed and serene.

A letter from Holland says, "A rupture is likely to succeed to the differences lately arisen between the Dutch and Swedes, a report being current here, that the King of Sweden had, by an edict of Council, ordered all the Dutch subjects to leave Swedish Pomerania."

From Ireland we hear, that they are apprehensive of more dangerous disturbances in that kingdom the ensuing winter, than any that have yet happened. The omen is, the innumerable hands in all branches, out of employ. If this is what they ground their fears upon, we have as much reason to be apprehensive of bad consequences, on this side the water.

By letters from Rotterdam dated Sept. 7, we learn, by a Dutch East Indiaman just arrived there, that one of the English East India Company's magazines lately blew up at Trincomopoly, by which accident upwards of eighty Europeans, and three hundred Asiatics, were destroyed. [In several other accounts of this terrible accident, the Europeans only are mentioned, as if the Asiatics were not deemed of consequence enough to deserve notice.]

The Admiralty are come to a resolution to reduce considerably the naval forces, instead of augmenting them.

Lord Cathcart gives the highest accounts of the rising splendor and growing greatness of the Russian Court and Empire. The magnificence of that, and the power of this, he says, will in a very short time eclipse that of any state in Europe. He thinks it not improbable, that this superiority may take place even in the reign of the present Empress (of whose surprising talents his Lordship is astonishingly lavish in the praise) if her life is extended but to the common course of nature.

By authentic letters from Captain Vanderdeere, of the Orange brig, lately arrived at Amsterdam from Surinam, we learn, that being on the Spanish main, on the 14th of May last, he was boarded by a Spanish guarda costa, the crew of which grossly insulted him and his people, and carried the brig into Carthagena, where he was detained three days, under pretence of being concerned in an illicit trade, before Don Juan de Salis, the Lieutenant Governor allowed him to depart. There were upwards of 500 subjects of Great Britain and Holland confined in the fortress when Captain Vanderdeere came away, most of whom he says, were in want of the common necessities of life.

An additional salary of 100 l. per annum is ordered to be paid to all his Majesty's Consuls in foreign parts.

A plan for erecting a new silk manufactory at Bristol, has, we hear, been presented to his Majesty and was most graciously received.

Extract of a letter from Petersburg, dated Aug. 23.

"Of the succeeding conferences of the congress at Foczan, we are informed, by very good authority, that it has been agreed upon, that the Porte is to keep Moldavia and Wallachia; for which he is to give to Russia a free passage through the Black Sea into the Mediterranean; and that, upon this assurance, the Empress is to build a fortress upon one of the sea ports; in consequence of which the Empress will have a free navigation from the sea of Azoph, without being obliged to keep an alliance with any foreign power. And the Porte farther obliges himself to take no notice of the dismembering the kingdom of Poland, but leave it entirely to the good liking of the three united powers."

Extract of a Letter from Warsaw, August 25.

"General Haddick hath just published two Manifestos. The one, to warn the Poles to remain quietly in their habitations, and that they must expect to be pursued by fire and sword, if, under the pretence of forming confederacies, they disturb the public repose. The other, which principally regards the clergy, orders all Ecclesiastics, from the Bishop to the simple incumbent, to give in an exact list of their revenues."

"A report prevails, that the Duke Albert of Saxe-Teichen will immediately enter this kingdom, at the head of 24,000 men."

Extract of a Letter from Swedish Pomerania, September 1.

"Every body in this place is filled with joy, General Ramsay having arrived here the day before yesterday with the important news from Stockholm of the late happy change in the State, and that the same is brought again to its primitive form, as it was in the time of Gustavus Adolphus. Her Majesty the Queen Dowager having power to receive the oaths of allegiance in Pomerania, the troops yesterday took the oaths at Stralsund: Her Majesty appeared with a crown of gold set with diamonds, and this day all the colleges did homage to the King. Her Majesty will go in a few days to Sweden, but is soon to return again."

A letter from Stockholm, dated August 27, says, We have just received advice, that all the inhabitants of Gothland have taken the same oath of fidelity before Prince Charles, that was taken here to the King; and that General Sprengporten has administered it to the inhabitants of Finland; where he went for that purpose; so that the new government seems now to be almost universally established."

Extract of a letter from Leiden, Sept. 10.

"We have just received advices from Poland, dated Aug. 29, which informs us that the decision of the affairs of Poland is fixed for the 18th of this month; that the peace between the two belligerent powers will be signed three days before; that at the above mentioned time, the Prussians, the Russians, and Austrians, will take possession of those parts of Poland which shall be assigned to their Courts; and that orders are already given for that purpose, among others to Gen. de Beling, and to the Baron de Saldern, who will remain at Warsaw till the 20th of September, &c."

Extract of a letter from the Hague, Sept. 12.

"Although we had flattered ourselves that the difference subsisting between this Republic and the Emperor of Morocco would speedily be adjusted to mutual satisfaction; it is now said, that according to all appearances, so far from an accommodation, an open rupture is expected between the two powers, inasmuch as the Barbary Prince demands, it is said, of the States General, such exorbitant presents as they will never grant. He modestly insists on having six new-built frigates, furnished with all necessary rigging, artillery, and ammunition, and that they shall be brought into one of his ports. As in granting his extravagant demand, it would put him in a condition to do still more mischief than he can do at present, it is believed that their High Mightinesses will immediately construct and equip six frigates, and perhaps more, to be made use of against the people of Morocco; and that they will endeavour to persuade the Courts of Madrid and Lisbon to make it a common cause with the Republic, and join some of their ships of war with hers, to bring the Emperor of Morocco to reason, and make him lay aside his arrogant demands."

Extract of a letter from Fort St. George, Feb. 12.

"I have little news to entertain you with. We are at peace here for the present. The late war we were at with the King of Tanjore, was ended about three months ago, by the Nabob's accepting of some lacks of rupees, and receiving the usual tribute from the Tanjoreans. Our army, under the command of Brigadier General Joseph Smith, after besieging the King's capital, called Tanjore, near 2 months, effected several breaches in the wall, one of which was practicable, and to have been attempted the day after matters were made up. The Company by treaty, are to have all the expences of the war paid them, besides to keep possession of a small fort within five miles of Tanjore, called Vellum, which was taken by our troops at the beginning of the war, and which may be of great service, as it will serve to keep the Tanjoreans in awe. A few days ago we had the melancholy news from Trincomopoly, where the army is at present in cantonment, of one of the powder magazines blowing up, and killing and wounding upwards of 200 Europeans."

Sept. 21. It was currently reported on Saturday, that the King of Sweden was assassinated in his palace, by two of his guards, yesterday se'nnight.

Extract of a Letter received by Prince Gallitzin at the Hague, dated Leghorn, August 28.

"The affairs of Alley Bey do not appear to be in so bad a situation as they were generally thought to be. I have just conversed with a monk who is in the Lazaretto, and came lately from Egypt; and he assures me, that when he left that place, Alley Bey was encamped within a few miles of Acri, at the head of 30,000 men, and that he insisted recruits daily, proposing, with the assistance of his friend Shick of Acri, to endeavour to recover Aleppo, where the people wish for his coming, because since his retreat from thence, nothing but disorders have prevailed. If this is true, the Porte cannot draw from those quarters either recruits or money, &c."

Extract of a letter from Rome, July 4.

"I have seen some spurious accounts in the English newspapers, relating to Prince Charles Stuart and the Duke of Gloucester, where 'tis said that Prince Charles had obliged the Duke to give way in their carriages passing each other. Now I do assure you, Sir, 'tis all false; for on the contrary the Duke, much becoming a gentleman, on their accidentally meeting three times in the streets, voluntarily ordered his carriage aside, and with the glasses of his coach down, very respectfully saluted the Prince in passing, which I judge highly proper to be told, as it does equal honour to both the personages; and is certainly more commendable and suitable to the rules of good breeding, than if his Highness had done otherwise."

Extract of a Letter from the Hague, Sep. 11.

"According to advice from Vienna, the Imperial Court is not very well pleased, that Russia and the Porte are unwilling to admit her Minister Plenipotentiary to the conferences held at the Congress of Fokzany, which she considers as a kind of distrust entertained by those powers of her mediation; but, as the Minister of the Court of Berlin is treated in the same manner, she is in some measure consoled, tho' she cannot conceal her discontent on the occasion. These letters add, that it is generally thought the Emperor and the King of Prussia will have a fresh interview to confer together, both on the affairs of Poland, and on the refusal to admit their Ministers to the conferences at Fokzany."

With Capt. Farmer came Passengers, Captain Kemble, Captain Rickets, Lieutenant McGrau, Mr. John Watts, Mr. Graves, and Mr. Bell and Daughter.

The same Day the Ship Grace, Capt. Young, arrived in 9 Weeks from Bristol: The 20th October, in Lat. 43, 24, he spoke with his Majesty's Schooner Dispatch, Capt. Michael Everets, 26 Days from Antigua with an Express, bound to Portsmouth, who, the Night before shifted his Ballast, and cut away his Mainmast, in a very hard Gale of Wind; being very leaky; and on the 27th, in Lat. 43, 58, spoke a Snow 5 Days out from Newfoundland, bound to Alicant.

The St. Thomas's in the East, Joseph Hollbrooks Master, from Bristol, arrived Yesterday in 9 Week, and 6 Days; on his Passage the 16th Instant, Lat. 46, Long. 66, spoke the Ship Concord, Joseph Horwood, of Philadelphia from the Bay, bound to Bristol, 6 Weeks out; and on Monday, 10 or 12 Leagues S. of the Light House, spoke the Albany, Capt. Bunyan, from London, 10 Weeks and 2 Days out, bound to this Port.

Tuesday Evening arrived the Ship New-York, Capt. Waton, in 10 Weeks and 5 Days from Bristol; he spoke on the Passage, October 25, in Lat. 39, 11, with the Sloop Dove, Capt. John Chapman, from Falmouth, bound to New-London. About the Middle of this Month, with a Brig from Martha's Vineyard, bound to Africa,

On Thursday last, about 3 o'clock in the Afternoon, One John Thorp a Blacksmith, who lived in Jew's-Alley; and worked in a Shop in Bayard-Street; was observed to run from his House in a seeming Fright, presently after which, the Children, who were small, ran out, crying, that their Daddy had killed their Mammy. The Neighbours and a Doctor, on going into the House found the Woman (Thorp's Wife) lying on the Floor, on her right Side, senseless, and seemingly dead, with a Wound, from which the Blood was running, in her Head, a little above the left Temple: The Wound, on Examination was found to be mortal, having deeply penetrated the Brain, and much fractured the Skull, both in the fore and back part. Thorp soon returned, and said he had been for a Doctor; that he was not present when the Accident happened; that being in the Yard he heard a Noise in the House, where on going in, he saw the Table and a Stove overturned, and his Wife bleeding on the Floor, wounded he supposed by falling on a Case Knife which lay near her, and was bloody, or by the Corner of the Stove Pan; but it was evident, that neither of those could have given the Wound, which was an Inch or two in Length at the Surface, and nearly the same to the Bottom. The Woman remained alive, but without the least Signs of Sensibility, till the next Morning, when she expired, and the Husband was committed to Gaol. The Coroner's Inquest which sat on the Body, did not till Monday, bring in their Verdict, which was, that the Elizabeth Thorp was murdered by her Husband—This Verdict among other Circumstances appears to have been founded upon Thorp's own Confession, since his Commitment, in the Account he gave of the Affair, tho' not supposed in all its Circumstances to be true: He acknowledged that while he was sitting at dinner with his Wife, a Quarrel happened between them, and that he having snatched a Knife from his Hand and cut his Fingers—he threw another Knife at her, when she, in a Fit, (he supposes) fell down, and in the Fall received the fatal Wound.

This tragical Event, whereby a Number of helpless Infants are exposed to the World; deprived at once of both their parental Supports—affords a melancholy Proof of the dangerous Effects of ungoverned Passions—and consequently of all Practices whereby the Powers of that Reason which is given us to govern and direct them, may be suspended or impaired.

Extract of a Letter from the County of Albany.

"The Justices of King's District, Matthew Adgate, William B. Whiting, James Savage, and Nathaniel Culver, Esquires, have distinguished themselves by an exemplary Vigilance, in the Discovery and Commitment of no less than twelve Persons, for the dangerous Office of Counterfeiting our Paper Currency, and passing counterfeited Bills.—Upon a close Examination of the first Person, apprehended for this offence, the Justices found out that several of the Offenders were in different Places, who appear to have been confederated together for carrying on this pernicious Practice:—And having issued several Warrants, and dispatched a Number of Officers at once, they concerted Measures, that most of the Delinquents were apprehended nearly about the same Time, and before the Alarm of the Fate of their Associates could reach any of them, the most noted of these Offenders is one Joseph Bill, who was at the White Plains.—Whither Colonel Elijah Williams, a Gentleman of Character, in Boston Government, accompanied by an Officer, who had a Warrant from the abovementioned Justices, went in Pursuit of him, and by an uncommon Dispatch, apprehended the Offender, before he had the least Intimation of his being discovered. There were found in Possession of the different Offenders, several Plates for Striking three Pounds and five Shillings, New York Bills, and Jersey Bills of different Denominations, also two Presses, and a Quantity of Types; a Stamp for Dollars, and other Implements, with a Quantity of Bills, some finished and some unfinished. The Conduct not only of the Magistrates in King's District, but of the Constables and Inferior Officers also, is highly commendable, and the Public is indebted to them as well as to Colonel Williams, for detecting, apprehending and bringing to condign Punishment, a Number of Persons, united in one of the most pernicious Confederacies that have been known in the Province for a long Time."

The Boston Papers of the 19th Instant give an account of a horrid Massacre committed about 3 o'clock in the Morning on Sunday the 15th Instant, in Boston Bay, by the Crew of a Topfail Pirate Schooner, upon 3 Men belonging to another Schooner which sailed from Boston the Evening before, for Capt. Cod, Thomas Nickerson Master, who, together with his Brother and his Brother in Law (named Newcomb) were murdered and thrown overboard by the Pirates, who after plundering the vessel of a considerable Sum of Money and other goods, and knocking out the Head of a Barrel of Rum of which they drank and wasted the greatest Part, they went off with their Booty, taking with them a Boy, whom some of them proposed to kill, but one of them saying no, he will do to make Punch for us, they did not then kill him. They consulted whether to burn the plundered Schooner or let her drive out to Sea, and concluding upon the latter, left her. The Whole was seen or overheard by a Passenger, a Relation of the Captain and of the same Name, who supposing the Pirates came on board to press Men, had lashed himself to a Rope and let himself down at the Stern of the Vessel, where he escaped Discovery, though the Pirate's Boat was once almost right under him. When they were gone, he got on board, and next Day making a Signal of Distress was relieved by Captain Doane and assisted to carry the vessel into Port. Expresses with the Account, were sent to Newport and Boston, where Admiral Montagu with all possible Dispatch ordered the Lively Frigate to be sent for Sea, which was towed down by the Boats belonging to the Fleet about Noon on Wednesday, in Order to go in Quest of the Pirates.

This Day the Brig Millons, Capt. Bagley, and on Sunday the Ship Dutchess of Gordon, Captain Winn, is to sail for London.

POET'S CORNER.

Motives for early Rising, by the late
Miss TALBOT.

AWAKE, my Laura, break the slumber chain,
Awake my friend to hours unroll'd by pain;
Awake to peaceful joys and thought refin'd,
Youth's cheerful morn, and virtue's vigorous mind;
Wake to all joys fair friendship can bestow,
All that from health and prosperous fortune flow.
Still dost thou sleep? Awake imprudent fair,
Few hours has life, and few of those can spare,
Forlorn thy drowsy couch, and sprightly rise,
While yet fresh morning streaks the ruddy skies;
While yet the birds their early matins sing,
And all around is blooming as the spring.
Ere sultry Phoebus with his scorching rays,
Has drank their dew-drops from the meadows gay,
Scorch'd every flower, embrown'd each drooping green,
Pall'd the pure air, and chas'd the pleasing scene.
Still dost thou sleep? O rise imprudent fair,
Few hours has life, nor of those few can spare.
But this perhaps was but a summer song,
And winter nights are dark, and cold, and long:
Weak reason that, for sleeping past the morn,
Yet urg'd by sloth, and by indulgence born,
Oh rather haste to rise, my slumbering friend,
While feeble suns their scanty influence lend;
While cheerful day-light yet adorns the skies;
Awake, my friend, my Laura haste to rise.
For soon the uncertain short-liv'd day shall fail,
And soon shall night extend her sooty veil:
Blank nature fades, black shades and phantoms drear
Haunt the sick eye, and fill the court of fear.
O therefore sleep no more, imprudent fair,
Few hours has day, few days the circling year,
Few years has life, and few of these can spare.
Think of the task these hours have yet in view,
Reason to arm, and passion to subdue;
While life's fair calm and flattering moments last,
To fence your mind against the stormy blast:
Early to hoard blest wisdom's peaceful store,
Ere yet your bark forsakes the friendly shore,
And the winds whistle, and the billows roar.
Imperfect beings! Weakly arm'd to bear
Pleasure's soft wiles, or sorrow's open war,
Alternate shocks from different sides to feel,
Now to subdue the heart, and now to steel:
Yet fraught with high aspiring strong desires,
How mad th' attempt to quench celestial fires!
Still to perfection tends the restless mind,
And happiness its bright reward assign'd.
And shall dull sloth obscure the heav'n-beam'd ray,
That guides our passage to the realms of day,
Cheers the faint heart, and points the dubious way?
Not weakly arm'd, if ever on our guard;
Nor to the worst unequal, if prepar'd:
Not unmountable the task, if lov'd,
Nor short the time, if ev'ry hour's improv'd.
O rouse thee, then, nor shun the glorious strife,
Extend, improve, enjoy thy hours of life;
Assert thy reason, animate thy heart,
And set thine life's short scene the useful part;
Then sleep in peace, by gentlest mem'ry crown'd,
Till time's vast year has fill'd its perfect round.

WILLIAM DEANE, Coachmaker,

INFORMS the public in general, and his customers in particular, that he carries on his business as usual, in Broad Street, where he makes all sorts of coaches, landaus, phaetons, carriages, chairs and chaises; likewise all sorts of harness and saddlery work, as also painting, gilding and japanning in the neatest and most elegant manner. And as he finishes all carriages whatever in his own shop, without applying to any other, he is likewise determined to make them as good, sell them as cheap, and be as expeditious as there is a possibility; and to convince the public of the truth of what he asserts, he will make any piece of work that is required, equal to any imported from England, and will sell it at the prime cost of that imported, by which means those who are pleased to favour him with their custom will save the freight, insurance, and the expenses naturally attending in putting the carriages to rights after they arrive. And as a further inducement, he will engage his work for a year after it is delivered, that is, if any part gives way or fails by fair usage, he will make it good at his own expense. Those advantages cannot be obtained on carriages imported. He has now a considerable stock of the best of all materials fit for making carriages. For the above reasons, he most humbly requests the encouragement of the public, which will be most gratefully acknowledged by him.

Said DEANE paints and repairs all manner of old work very reasonably; and has for sale, just finished, a new phaeton and four new chairs.

MACHINE to dress FLOUR.

THE King has been pleased to grant to JOHN MILNE of Manchester, his royal letters patent, for all his colonies in America, &c. for the sole making and vending his new invented machines, for the dressing the flour of wheat, &c. which machines are found to be of great utility by all persons who have them in use; they not only make the flour look better, but also make it up better, as they make it more lively, and will dispatch three times as much business in the same time, as the common method of bolting with cloths, and they will do that business at one operation, which, to be done with cloths, requires several, for they will dress fine flour, two seconds and three seconds, and clean the bran at one operation; or they may make two sorts, or only one sort of flour, by moving the partitions within the box, just as the person pleases who attends it; and considering their duration, are much cheaper than cloths. Also, his new invented machines for cleaning wheat, barley, &c. which takes out seeds, dirt, &c. and will break and destroy smut-balls, and give a brightness and lustre to the grain. The said machines are to be sold by JOHN MILNE, and Co. at their house in Manchester; or by applying to James Milne (son of the said John Milne) who is now at Mr. Carleton's, near the Fort, in New-York.

Just imported in the last vessels from ENGLAND, A fresh COLLECTION of the above mentioned MACHINES.

To the PUBLIC.

HAVING had an experience of Mr. Milne's new invented patent machines, for bolting flour and cleaning wheat, at my mill, where they are now to be seen at work, at Long-Island, I think it my duty to declare, that they are a curious, expeditious and elegant contrivance, and what, in my opinion, will answer every purpose for which they are designed, and likewise be of great service to the public.

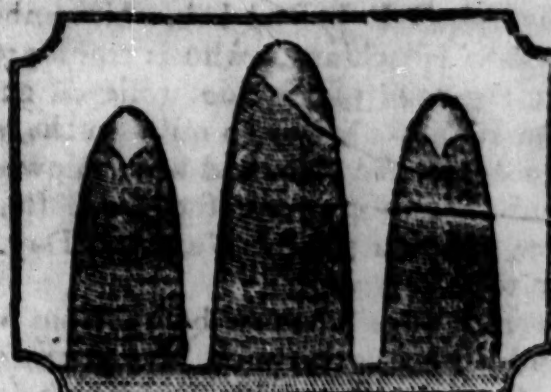

To the PUBLIC.

I think it incumbent on me, for the good of the community, and particularly of those who are manufacturers of flour, to declare, that upon trial, I have found Mr. Milne's machine answer the purposes of bolting, for which they are intended; infinitely better than the old method of doing it with cloths, as they really bolt three times as quick without the least exaggeration, and are a very ingenious contrivance.

Extract of a letter from Burlem, July 1.

"Yesterday we took a walk to the famous subterranean Canal at Herecastle, which is now opened for a mile and upwards on one side of the hill, and more than half a mile on the other; of course, the whole must be completed in a short time. As it is not filled with water, we entered into it, one of the party repeating the beautiful lines of Virgil which describe the descent of Eneas into the Elysian field. On a sudden our ears were struck with the most melodious sounds. Left you should imagine us to have heard the genius or goddess of the mountain singing the praises of Engineer Brindly, it be necessary to inform you that one of the company had advanced some hundred paces before, and there favoured us with some excellent airs on the German flute. You can scarcely conceive the charming effect of this music echoed and re-echoed along a cavern near two thousand years in length. But of all our curiosities my guest is most pleased with the philosopher, as we call him here; a person who has picked up from Rousseau, Voltaire, and other oddities of the present age, the most whimsical system imaginable. He defends, with great zeal, the opinion of doctor Smith, that our species has not since the creation, been two legged, and has for many new arguments to prove that man is by nature a four-footed Beast, as he expresses himself; nay more, he pretends to determine, by certain abstract reasoning, in what year of our Lord (to use his own words) the human form first became erect. He wishes for an acquaintance with the worthy gentleman who so gracefully appeared on all fours at Madam Cornely's, and hopes to see the day when this example will be universally followed. The most honorable and most creditable employments in life he compares to robbing on the high way, and picking pockets; commerce, to a number of children removing stones or rubbish from one place to another; society, government, laws, religion, every thing esteemed great or useful, at times fall under the lash of this rural Cynick."

Extract of a letter from Warsaw, July 8.

"We have received a letter from Jaffay with advice, that the Field Marshal General Count Romanow, in company with one of the Emperor of Germany's Plenipotentiaries are set out for the congress of peace at Pockzan. And by the same channel we learn the Empress of Russia, has proposed the following articles, as the grounds upon which the Congress is to be opened. 1. Her Imperial Majesty demands 70,000,000 of rubles, which in English money, is more than ten million and an half sterling, in the name of damages. 2. She demands a free navigation in the Black sea, a free passage through the Dardanelles into the Mediterranean. 3. That Crimea shall be under her protection, and that she shall have the liberty of appointing whosoever she shall please to be the Cham or Vice-Roy of it. 4. That the inhabitants of Moldavia and Valachia shall have full liberty to put themselves under the subjection either of the Empress of Russia or the Emperor of Germany, or the King of Prussia. 5. If Aly Bey finds himself in a condition not to war any longer with the Porte, the Porte shall grant him honourable terms of peace, otherwise there can be no peace with Russia. 6. The Porte shall restore to the house of Austria all the towns, places, and territories conquered from the Austrians during the last war, and in particular the strong frontier town of Belgrade, and the two provinces of Servia and Bosnia. These are the opening conditions of peace, but the conclusive conditions will most probably fall short of them in the proportion of ten in the hundred."

Extract of a letter from Gosport, August 20.

"Two persons have attended at the dock yard by a board order, with two different chemical preparations, for preserving the bottoms of ships from being destroyed by the worms: The experiment has been tried this week on the bottom of the Diligence sloop of war, going to Antigua; one side of her bottom is painted with black, and the other with a white mixture."

Extract of a letter to the King, inserted in the London Evening Post of August 22, 1772.

In a former letter I addressed you on the undeserved lenity extended to Capt. Jones of the Royal Regiment of Artillery, under sentence of death for sodomy. The evidence on which he was convicted was legal, or the court would certainly have rejected it; and that it was equally clear and explicit, is evident from the jury being unanimous in their verdict. What apology then can possibly be made for preserving this man from his punishment? Has your Majesty determined to make a mockery of our laws and reduce the courts of justice to be subservient to your pleasure? Our ancestors, I am convinced, never suspected the prerogative of the crown, when they granted it, would be applied to such unworthy purposes, it was undoubtedly an act of generosity in them, and ought from a principle of gratitude to be treated with tenderness; yet if such is your Majesty's intention, believe me you'll be deceived, you may attempt to render them independent, but whatever Idea you may entertain of Royalty, the people, be assured, respect their laws too well, ever to make a voluntary sacrifice of them, either to the caprice or obliquity of their Prince. The laws possess the first claim to their regard, and while you make them the rule of your conduct you have nothing to apprehend.

The allegiance and respect due to you, from us, is only conditional, and when the terms are not complied with on your side, we are dissolved from the obligation on ours. You may affect to condemn this method of reasoning, and treat the people without ceremony, but they will not, I am persuaded, submit without opposition.

Your compassionating an unnatural scoundrel has alarmed the whole nation, and I could have wished you, Sir, to have heard the honest reproaches of the enraged multitude, who assembled to see this detestable wretch carried to execution. The repetition of them is dangerous, but wishes in abundance prevailed, and your Majesty may easily guess what they were. With respect to myself, I confess I was astonished at the part you had taken. I considered it as an insult offered to the whole nation, and became immediately interested as an individual, who reveres the laws of his country before his sovereign. I declared my sentiments with a degree of zeal, which men more prudent and less honest would tremble at; but I dispise those mean, narrow maxims which enslave the mind. I am a man, and will exert my prerogative as such, whenever truth and reason are on my side. In the present case no language can be so severe.

Murderers repeatedly pardoned! A court of justice deliberately interrupted! The prerogative of the crown wantonly extended! And to complete the black catalogue.

The slaves of Sodom have a patent from the Throne to enjoy, with impunity, their unnatural lust!

Such, Sir, is the picture of your reign, and posterity, in reading the history of this age, will lament the unfortunate fate of Charles the first and accuse us of pusillanimity. However, Sir, his misfortunes are, at least, a lesson of advice to you. They may teach you not to provoke the resentment of your subjects.

If we examine the character of Mr. Jones, either as an officer or the son of a taylor, it is probable we may find nothing in either exceptionable. He may very possibly, in those characters be respected; but the perpetration of this horrible act is so plain, as to render his reputation, in the regiment of St. Martin's lane, intirely useless. The question is, guilty or not guilty? By the laws of the land he is guilty. You was invested with the privilege of pardoning offenders, I confess; but it was imagined, this prerogative would only be exerted, when their innocence, or the malice of their accusers, was easy to be proved. But in this case, you have no plea of excuse, it is therefore evident, you have violated the criminal laws of the kingdom, which bind you equally with myself.

An admirer of the Fair Sex.
